

Dear Parents,

My name is Amber Pinnow and I am happy to begin this new school year as Rocky Mountain's counselor.

At the beginning of the year, I visit each classroom and tell the students what a school counselor does and how they can reach me. I would like families to know me as well. I work with the students in the classroom, individually and in groups. Throughout the year I will be presenting classroom lessons on a variety of subjects such as bully proofing, handling conflict, accepting differences, making friends, and personal safety, to name a few.

I work individually with students who are referred to me by teachers, parents or the students themselves. Children can fill out a note and leave it in my mailbox if they wish to visit with me.

Students may also participate in a counseling group. Children that are referred for a group will take a permission slip home to parents. I offer Friendship groups, Changing Families Groups, Learning to Control Anger Groups and groups for children with parents that are incarcerated.

If you are interested in having your child see me or participate in a group, please contact me.
